To whom it may concern,

As a young farmer I can't express our needs enough to continue programs here in New Jersey. Direct and Countercyclical payments along with conservation programs such as AMA or EQUIP make farming an attainable reality and lifestyle for those wishing to get in. But I think the new farm bill should make more provisions to attract other young farmers who will be the future of our agriculture, not just in this state, but across the country. There are not enough young farmers entering or staying with it; this problem must be addressed.

Scott Henderson