Question1: Focus payments on those willing to increase their own expenses when conserving the land instead of paying for produced crops - which increases the price of land based on expected income without conserving its productivity.

Question2: Help farmers pay for expensive conservation practices that increase the cost of producing commodities while conserving the resources of the land.

Question3: Have a sliding scale for payments. The larger the acreage involved, the less payment per acre a farmer should receive.

Question4: Promote and maintain an atmosphere of strong conservation and forestry production. Reward those that have land set aside for natural resources, e.g. as wildlife habitat and forestry.

Question5: Promote university research and extension for agriculture and natural resources.

Question6: Promote university research and extension for agriculture and natural resources.
