Question1: I know it is a problem but have no suggestion as to how to address, others that have a better understanding of this should be listened to.

Question2: Require other countries importing into the US to adhere to regulations on chemical use the same as our farmers do.

Question3: Yes, the current policy is completely wrong. It should be based on how well those farmers are taking care of our environment while farming, good farming practices in conservation. The Conservation Security Program (CSP) rewards farmers for stewardship of the environment while producing good quality products.

Question4: Fully fund and implement the Conservation Security Program (CSP) reward stewardship through good farming practices.

Question5: Fund new technologies and and innovative stratgies to bring traditionally city based jobs to rural communities and at the same time stop jobs from leaving our country like call centers.

Question6: All of the examples above need to be given funding and major consideration because it is important to set ourselves apart from the world. Educating the public about the value of products produced in our country especially since the standards in the US for chemical use etc. are higher than other countries.
