Question1: Make public owned land available for farming.

Question2: Let the markets determine what is produced and the prices for these products.

Question3: You are assuming producers need government assistance.

Agricultural subsidies and income supports have cost taxpayers over $20 billion every year, along with driving up prices for grocers and consumers. All of these programs amount to a sticky web of "food taxes" that also serve to fatten the bottom lines of agribusiness, encourage family farm sell-offs, and undermine trade relations.

Eliminate these food taxes.

Question4: The key point is

Question5:

Stay out of the farmer

Question6: We do not need "in the next farm bill".
