Question1: Farm land prices must be kept down so that farmers can afford to farm. The government should zone farm land so that contractors cannot come in and buy up the land. This is the main factor in raising land prices. The people cannot "eat" houses.

Question2: Put a halt to imports from all the countries that "hate" America for everything except the handouts our government gives them, which are furnished by we taxpayers that have absolutely no say as to what "we the taxpayers" are forced to pay to these countries.

Question3: Farmers used to raise and sell their products like every other business. Drop the subsidies and more family farms will operate, and prices will drop, and everyone will be able to make a living.

Subsidies just encourage the big farms run by big corporations to take over the farming industry, and, once again the taxpayers (without any sayso), are forced to support "big business", and then also forced to pay the high prices such subsidies encourage.

Question4: When we had family farms without Government interference and/or handouts, the environment was not affected. If the Government is so concerned about cleaner air and water, they should stop shooting rockets up in the air for the damn space program we taxpayers are forced to pay for.

Question5: Stop subsidizing farming for big corporations, so that family farms can operate with a profit, and keep the Governments nose out of it.

Question6: The taxpayers do not need any more "research" to pay for. Keep the Government out of farming, and things will run like they used to. Whenever the Government gets involved, nothing works. Look at the mess the Government has made of Social Security. If Social Security had been privatized in the first place, the Government could not have stolen the funds from the hard working people that paid into it, and there would be no problem. The only problems with farming are the ones created by Government interference.
