Question1: The real Question being asked in this public comment form is how can the federal government get out of the subsidy business and if the US goverment does get out of the business what will the impact be. The current feeling is that the impact will be very negitive to the current true farmer and the current ture farming dependent community. To window dress the negitive impact on the community a token conservation / enviroment subsidy will be provided to help make the community pretty so that the nation will believe that there food is being produced in a politically correct healthy environment.

The elimination of the farm subsidy will speed up the time table that international companies will controll production agriculture and the end to the family farm.

If farm subsidy is stopped there will be a large need to cover the large economical loss in the farming community. The farm community loss will be larger then the economical loss of the 80's. A buy out plan is needed to covert the current farm subsidy economy to a non subsidy economy that does not cause undue hardship to the current farmers and farming communities.

The buy out will need to cover the equity loss to the farm real estate.

This should NOT be a Freedom to farm bill.
