Question1: Simply terminate, remove or recind those programs that lead to this artificial increase in land prices. No more price supports. No more subsidies.

Question2: Get government out of the way. No more price supports. No more subsidies.

Question3: There should be NO taxpayer-funded distribution of assistance to achieve these socialist oriented goals. There are not enough minds in the world that could accurately do what a free-market can.

Question4: Farmers already have an incentive to be good stewards of their lands. It's called profit. Why would they ruin the raw materials necessary to achieve these profits? U.S. farmers also should not be beholden to any global organization such as the WTO.

Question5: Infrastructure is good. But this is best handled at the state and local level.

Question6: Again, get the goverment out of the way.
