Question1: We don't need new farmers. We need more efficient use of the land. Intensive cropping and monocultures are destroying our landscape and will eventually be the cause of the breakdown of our entire food production capability. We need to diversify the landscape in order to preserve it for future generations

Question2: Support production of organic products.

Question3: Create incentives that encourage diversity and land stewardship. Pay farmers for the things they do to preserve the land rather than destroy it by stripping it, of the biodiversity that is so important to our survival

Question4: Renew and expand the Conservation Reserve Program and the Wetland Reserve Program. Create New programs for preserving buffer strips along creeks and streams.

Question5: Help make marginal farm ground available for industrial developement. Support communication infrastucture development in smaller communities to make them more attractive for business activities

Question6: These topics should be the at the top of the list of priorities. Supporting these issues will only reinforce the other issues that have been addressed in this list of questions
