I believe your number one concern should be to preserve small family farming in this country. Small farms produce high quality, frequently organic food, and truly have the well being of their customers at heart. They also treat their animals with love and care, as opposed to large farms where animals suffer and are fed antibiotics and hormones. It is also important to preserve the current organic standards and NOT water them down. I would also like to see less or no use of hormones and antibiotics, the overuse of which causes antibiotic-resistant bacteria to flourish.

Thanks you.
