Question1: Comments on capitalization of farm programs into land prices is right..The programs have guaranteed the bankers a sound loan; therefore the larger the farm and loan the larger the farms became and eliminated farms and young farmers. This is the opposite of politics which was to save the small farm. This has led to extreme large farm or very part time farmers whose existance is dubious..the sad thing is that the big successful farms are not necessarily that successful---they are a pawn of the government.

Never in the history of our country did we ever think that politics would drive the basic industry of our nation into government control; a sure condition of a nations demise

Question2: Reverse farm programs so a responsive agriculture will adjust economically as a free enterprise and not one that is run by the State Department.

There a hundreds of operations that would trade internationally if all restrictions were removed.

Question3: Crop insurance should be encouraged, but let insurance companies care the mechanics; not the gov't.

Encourage forward marketing and farmer determine his own price; not the gov't.

Question4: It is tough to cut back a monster the politicians have created..

Do not make programs worse be being involved with the WTO (as difficult as that may be)

Envirementally, look what farmers are already doing; given the opportunity and not making programs which will discourage the envirement they will make changes to save our soils and envirement--they don't need the envirementists to tell them or pay them what to do

Question5: We have lost the effectivness of our agriculture county agent; State agriculture, college research should lead in new products and education. Financing will come to good new developments without the national gov't.

Question6: Let free enterprise work; cut out gov't programs which are outdated before they are effective. Let the market make decisions and move new ideas to everyones benefit.
