

From: "dukeswampy@juno.com%inter2" <dukeswampy@juno.com>
Subject: Farm Bill 2007 Official Comments - 11/10/2005 11:19 AM CST
Date Sent: 11/10/2005 11:19:03 CST
Date Received: 11/10/2005 11:21:12 CST

Email: dukeswampy@juno.com

FirstName: Daniel

LastName: Vallero

Address1: 12101 West Kirk Lane

Address2:

City: Tucson

State: Arizona

zipcode: 85743

Question1: Half of all land in the United States is dedicated to agriculture, something that makes issues relating to farm policy and land management critical for protecting wildlife. The National Wildlife Federation has long been at work behind the scenes urging legislation that offers financial incentives for farmers to set aside parts of their land to benefit wildlife, as well as encourage smart land-use ethics. In fact, the 2002 Farm Bill included numerous conservation programs with environmentally-friendly incentives to farmers.

Question2: Half of all land in the United States is dedicated to agriculture, something that makes issues relating to farm policy and land management critical for protecting wildlife. The National Wildlife Federation has long been at work behind the scenes urging legislation that offers financial incentives for farmers to set aside parts of their land to benefit wildlife, as well as encourage smart land-use ethics. In fact, the 2002 Farm Bill included numerous conservation programs with environmentally-friendly incentives to farmers.

Question3: Half of all land in the United States is dedicated to agriculture, something that makes issues relating to farm policy and land management critical for protecting wildlife. The National Wildlife Federation has long been at work behind the scenes urging legislation that offers financial incentives for farmers to set aside parts of their land to benefit wildlife, as well as encourage smart land-use ethics. In fact, the 2002 Farm Bill included numerous conservation programs with environmentally-friendly incentives to farmers.

Question4: Half of all land in the United States is dedicated to agriculture, something that makes issues relating to farm policy and land management critical for protecting wildlife. The National Wildlife Federation has long been at work behind the scenes urging legislation that offers financial incentives for farmers to set aside parts of their land to benefit wildlife, as well as encourage smart land-use ethics. In fact, the 2002 Farm Bill included numerous conservation programs with environmentally-friendly incentives to farmers.

Question5: Half of all land in the United States is dedicated to agriculture, something that makes issues relating to farm policy and land management critical for protecting wildlife. The National Wildlife Federation has long been at work behind the scenes urging legislation that offers financial incentives for farmers to set aside parts of their land to benefit wildlife, as well as encourage smart land-use ethics. In fact, the 2002 Farm Bill included numerous conservation programs with environmentally-friendly incentives to farmers.

Question6: Half of all land in the United States is dedicated to agriculture, something that makes issues relating to farm policy and land management critical for protecting wildlife. The National Wildlife Federation has long been at work behind the scenes urging legislation that offers financial incentives for farmers to set aside parts of their land to benefit wildlife, as well as encourage smart land-use ethics. In fact, the 2002 Farm Bill included numerous conservation programs with environmentally-friendly incentives to farmers.