Question1: Subsidize new farmers and any small farmers that managed to survive. We need to remain self sufficient as a country in securing our food.

Question2: Consumers care about how farm animals are treated and concerned about their health. We need to be humane and superior to other countries in the quality of food we produce.. The USDA should propose eliminating the most egregious farming practices such as crates and battery cages.

Question3: Subsidies should not benefit large producers who subject animals to inhumane confinement conditions, mutilations and adverse handling. The USDA should not give financial assistance to practices shown by scientific research to be inhumane.

Question4: Set minimum space for harboring animals raised for food. Do away with factory farms that cause pollution and waste disposal problems.

Question5: Yes invest in rural America and small farms.

Question6:
