Question1: government help with low costs loans.

Question2: Foreign consumers actually do care how animals are treated, as I learned this Fall from my relatives in Europe. The USDA should propose eliminating the worse of our factory farming practices, such as crates and battery cages!

Question3: Larger and larger farms are not only bad for the smaller farmers but for the food animals as well, in their treatment and the health of our food. The USDA should stop providing financial assistance to producers that participate in these inhumane practices. Bad science and bad sense.

Question4: Eliminate factory farming and animals, the environment and the farmers will all benefit -- not to mention our health.

Please consider proposing minimum space allowances for animals allowing natural behaviors for them.

Question5: Yes, let's pay attention to rural America!

Let's stop encouraging Factory Farms give backing to rural farm programs.

Question6: Organic products are truly gaining attention from more people. Yes, do address them.
