Question1:

Question2: I believe a nation-wide switch from monoculture farms to varied organic, small-plot farms will not only keep american farmers competetive in the national market, but will also make organic an affordable commodity in our domestic market. In addition, it will show the rest of the world that we can responsibly develop the industry without doing more irreparable damage to the environment.

Question3:

Question4: The installation of wind turbines, especially in the Great Plains will give the farmers an additional source of income and reduce our dependency on both domestic and imported fossil fuels for elcetricity generation without sacrificing fertile land.
