Question1: The US government has no business getting into this.

Question2: Hre again, the US government has no business getting into this. Most farmers know the agricultural markets of other countries.

If they don't the government should send them out to every US farmer.

Then, let the farmer grow what he/she wishes.

Question3: Concentrate the money to the "Ma and Pa" farmers. Corporate farms should not get a penny.

Question4: Monitor all farmers on-the-ground performance with trained ecologists. A cash incentive should be given to those that are doing a good job ecologically.

Question5: By doing nothing. Farmers choose to live where they do, and they do not want the government to ruin it.

Question6: Not at all. Once again, let the farmer grow what he or she wants.
