Question1:

Question2: The US is behind other countries in maintaining any minimum standard for the welfare of farm animals, in transport or at slaughter.

The USDA should eliminate factory farming practices such as crates for pregnant sows and veal calves, and battery cages for laying hens.

Question3: Current subsidies benefit the large producers that subject animals to intensive confinement, mutilation, and aversive handling techniques. The USDA should stop providing financial assistance to such producers.

Question4: Eliminate factory farming. This benefits animal welfare as well as the environment. The USDA should propose setting minimum space allowances to provide animals with the freedom to move naturally, and protect the environment by reducing pollution and waste disposal problems.
