Question1: Agribusiness should not be able to monopolize things like the requirement to use certified/registered, or modified seed for production. Pressures on loans should be relaxed or timelines extended, especially when it comes to property transfer intergenerationally. Small farms should be given more latitude to meet more subsistence, and not production values. Tax burdens should be restructured for the same reasons.

Question2: US subsidies make farming in other parts of the world difficult to impossible. Any efforts to insure survival of US agriculture should not result in driving farmers in other parts of the world out of business.

Question3: Current abuses of farm policy need to be dealt with swiftly, and with sufficient severity to ensure wide spread compliance. Small scale agriculture should be able to access program supports with greater ease and clarity.

Question4: Current conservation and stewardship incentives should be expanded.

Question5: Look to land use restrictions as demonstrated in Oregon to incentivise the retention of farmland in the production base, instead of farming Walmarts.

Question6: I don't know, but wholeheartedly support the trend.
