

Jackson Takach

“Jackson Takach, an economist with Farmer Mac, is a Kentucky native whose strong ties to agriculture began while growing up in the rural town of Scottsville. He has since dedicated a career to agricultural finance where he can combine his passion for rural America with his natural curiosity of the world and his lofty desire to explain how we interact within it. He joined the Farmer Mac team in 2005, and has worked in the research, credit, and underwriting departments.

Today, his focus at Farmer Mac currently includes quantitative analysis of credit, interest rate, and other market-based risks, as well as monitoring conditions of the agricultural economy, operational information systems analysis, and statistical programming. He holds a Bachelor’s degree in economics from Centre College, a Master’s degree in agricultural economics from Purdue University, and a Master’s of Business Administration from Indiana University’s Kelley School of Business. He has also been a CFA charterholder since 2012.”
